

JUSTINE

★What's your favourite memory of MasterChef so far? Hong Kong, definitely. Doing the amazing race with Julie, running through Hong Kong. And on Lamma Island, we had this massive fish we had to kill. That poor fish went through so much pain.

★What's the hardest thing? Sitting on the chairs waiting to see if we're safe or not, every week. And also just before we start cooking, because you don't know if you're doing the right dish.

★Is it really competitive now? We've been together for so long that we're really over all the petty arguments. Me personally, I can't even worry about shit like that. We can have that competitive element in the challenge, but when that hour is finished, we're all mates after that. There were so many different personalities when there were 20 people in the house, and naturally people are going to get up each other's noses.

★Any romances in the house? There was one between Kate and Josh. There was definitely a romance there. Kate was very much attracted to Josh.

★What about you, you weren't keen on anyone? No, I'm single. I'm too busy for it right now, but there's no-one out there! I've been single for over a year.

LUCAS

★What's the hardest thing about being in the house? Being away from the family, those first two or three weeks were hard. And not knowing what was going to happen, not knowing what's coming up. All of a sudden you're stuck in this house and you don't know what's going to happen the next minute, let alone next week.

★Does everyone band together in the house like a MasterChef family or is it getting more competitive? Everyone really respects each other now. We've all seen how hard everyone's worked to be here. But at this stage it's a bit more dog-eat-dog – it's a bit more about the individual.

★Was there anyone in the house that people avoided? Sandra was really hard work sometimes. A bit self-absorbed. She didn't take criticism well. And whenever you compete in anything you have to take criticism. And she blamed others around her for her mistakes. She was hard work, really hard work. I think she started missing her family more and more, and she became harder to deal with.
